TO ESCAPE CRITICISM:
DO NOTHING

I am one of those restless chaps that are never satisfied unless they are doing something to better their condition or that of those about them. I try to do the best of it. I may fail sometimes, but it is far better to have tried and failed than to never have tried at all.

I like to say in my advertising the things you like to read and to tell the truth about my goods as far as I know.

I am on the climb, which is what all of you like to see. It means to be something. To stand still means to go down and be nothing. You either advance or recede. And the fellow who imagines that he has gone high enough is already on the return trip, at excursion rates.

I have my store full of goods that I do not want. I didn't buy them to keep. They are for you, and many are the articles you will be wanting in the next few days.
